

The Missing Necklace

Last week, Ben and Betty went to the park. When it was time to go home, Betty suddenly said, 'Oh, my silver necklace is missing! I must find it.' She was very afraid.

There was a thin man with curly hair working in the park. 'Excuse me, I have lost my necklace. Did anyone see my silver necklace?' Betty asked him. The man answered, 'No, I didn't.' Betty and Ben felt very disappointed.

Ben and Betty walked around the park. Ben said to Betty, 'Look! There's a young woman in a spotted dress with straight hair. She is holding something shiny in her hand.'

Then, Betty asked the woman, 'Did you see a silver necklace?' 'No, I didn't,' the woman answered nervously. Ben thought the woman was suspicious because she looked afraid that they would know she stole Betty's necklace.

Finally, they called the police immediately. When the police arrived, they checked the security cameras and found out where the necklace was. The police told them that the necklace had been stolen by the woman sitting on the bench.

Luckily, the police caught the woman and returned the necklace back to Betty. They felt great and learned that they must take better care of their belongings next time.
