

The Missing Necklace

Ben and Betty were in the park in the morning. Betty couldn't find her necklace. She was very unhappy and suggested going to the park office. There was a park officer there. He had curly hair. Betty said to him, "Have you seen my necklace"? The Park office shook his head and said, "No, I haven't. But maybe someone will turn it in later". Then she suggested, "You can go back to the park and look around carefully".

Ben and Betty left the park office and decided to check the benches nearby. As they got closer, Betty spotted a lady in a polka-dotted dress. She tugged at Ben's sleeve and whispered. "Look! May we ask for help".

They walked up to her. Betty asked, "Have you found my necklace? The lady smiled and replied, "I didn't see it". Ben asked, "Then what is that in your hand"? The woman said, "This is my bread". They had no choice but to home go on their way back, they saw the necklace. They were home happily.
